NABCO Introduces NAX Hermetic Door

MUSKEGO, WI – June 5, 2017 – NABCO proudly introduces the NAX Advanced Hermetic Door for high-level hygiene control applications. The threat of infectious diseases has inspired many hospitals and healthcare facilities to improve their hygiene control - often this includes adding Airborne Infection Isolation Rooms otherwise known as AIIR. The NAX supports AIIRs by hermetically sealing the entrance to prevent air infiltration. In addition, the NAX is an acoustic rated door and offers a radiation barrier for X-ray shielding as well as hands free operation for infection control making it ideal for operating rooms, ICUs and X-ray rooms. The NAX is also designed for industrial applications including clean rooms, laboratories and pharmaceutical facilities.

The NAX Hermetic Door exceeds North America's expectations by offering minimal air leakage, a low profile, sleek design and the convenience to open completely for full clearance. In the event of a power outage, the door remains in the closed position maintaining an airtight performance, but still allowing for easy manual opening. A variety of door panels, handle options and window types are available to meet customers' functional and aesthetic needs.
